

a) In the time of 1918-1934 German people had a great sense of Nationalism toward "Old Germany". The new German being the Weimar, the Weimar republic and the founders of this constitution were seen as "The November criminals" the traitors of Germany. They were seen by the ~~Nation~~ majority of German people as the reason for Germany's depression. The Weimar being the erratic ~~gov~~ constitution it was unstable having 6 or more parties in power within months. Hitler was able to play on the German people's great sense of Nationalism saying he would restore Germany to the "Good old days" and provide Germany with the strength it needs to restore it to its original glory. Hitler blamed the Weimar for the crisis and them being the "November Criminals," the traitors of Germany. Due to Germany's great sense of nationalism a great deal of support went to Hitler.

eventually causing the downfall of the Weimar Republic.